RECOVER BODY FROM HULL OF SUBMARINE: ALL DEAD

Engineman's Corpse Brought To Surface—Divers Risk Lives In Search Of More Victims From Steel Tomb

New London, Conn., Oct. 3.—The body of Paul Daniel Burk, engineman, second class of the submarine, was brought aboard the ship today after a short while after divers had begun their morning operations within the S-51.

The same military honors accorded when the four bodies previously had been found were brought aboard to Camden marked the bringing of Burk to the surface.

Explorations continued in the engine room.

Simple church services will be held at the submarine base here tomorrow it was announced.

New London, Conn., Oct. 3.—Taking their own lives in their hands divers about the grave of the S-51 today girded themselves to fetch from within that grim steel casket, more bodies of her crew.

The crew is now "officially" dead and the suspense of kinfolk as to whether their loved ones are dead or alive in the chambers of the submarine is at an end.

An exploration hole bored into the torpedo room late yesterday, revealed upon the air gauge that this section was flooded and established that from stem to stern, the craft was filled with water.

WILBUR SCORES NAVY CRITICS IN ADDRESS AT SHIP LAUNCHING

Says New Lexington Evidence Department Making Progress

Washington, Oct. 3.—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur in an address at the launching of the airplane carrier Lexington here today scored critics of the navy who have condemned it as "hidebound with conservatism" and cited construction of the Lexington as evidence of the navy's keeping pace with progress.

At the ceremony, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy bureau of aeronautics, reiterated his opposition to separation of naval aviation from complete naval control.

Declaring that the Lexington "is more than a ship; it is a monument to faith, to hope and to progress," Wilbur said:

"Every blow of the hammer used in her construction gives vocal protest to the unthinking declaration that the American navy is hidebound with conservatism and immovably anchored by Barnacle Encrusted Chains to things of the past."

"This monument is a witness bearing silent testimony to the belief of the men and officers of the American navy in the use of aircraft for national defense."

The liberal appropriations for the construction of the Lexington and Saratoga with their equipment passing congress by unanimous consent are irrefutable proof that every member in the legislative halls of congress believes that the Navy needs aircraft in the performance of its functions."

Moffett said the Navy "views with great alarm" an attempt to deprive the navy of independent control of her aviation because a fundamental principle of naval operation is that aviation must be an integral part of the fleet.

"The time has come when there should be no further delay in the necessary preparations for a general international conference which shall make more definite and certain and comprehensive the body of law by which international conduct is to be ruled," Root said.

Root did not say whether a condonation conference should be called by President Coolidge or the matter should be handled by the committee already designated by the League of Nations for more preliminary work.

Flyer Missing Since Thursday—Fog Hinders Rescuers

Bellevue, Pa., Oct. 3.—Searching parties today resumed their work of scouring the mountainous districts of Center County hoping to find Charles H. Ames, pilot of the New York-Chicago air mail plane which was last seen Thursday night when it passed over Hartleton, thirty miles from here.

Fred Gehaus, manager of the Bellevue field is directing the work and every available man started out today after one entire day of unsuccessful hunting.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 3.—Unless driven back by rain and fog a squadron of airplanes, including four from the Cleveland air port, will search the mountains east and west of Bellevue, Pa., today for Charles H. Ames, New York to Cleveland air mail pilot missing since Thursday night.

Ames was last seen when his plane passed over Hartleton, Pa., at 11:30 p.m., Thursday. Officials fear he lost his way and may have plunged into a mountain side.

Weather conditions in the Bellevue region were reported bad this morning. The atmosphere was laden with a dense fog and searching parties were experiencing difficulty in finding their way.

As soon as conditions improve two planes will leave here for Bellevue, H. S. Salisbury, night manager of the air port announced. The planes will be piloted by Paul Collins and Lloyd Bertand, air mail fliers who will join J. B. Hill and Earl Ward, two pilots forced down at Bellevue by darkness last night after a futile two hour search.

Wild and roughly wooded ranges in the Bellevue district make the search hazardous, air port officials declared. No mail planes have been sent over the route since Ames disappeared. Mail has been sent to Cleveland by train and transferred here to Chicago planes.

WORK TO START IMMEDIATELY ON COTTAGE TO ACCOMMODATE STATE INSANE PATIENTS

Columbus, Oct. 3.—Work on a new cottage to accommodate 100 insane patients at Hawthornedon will start immediately, State Welfare, Director Harper announced today.

Harper said the cottage would be one of the department's first steps toward relieving congestion in the Cleveland state hospital.

Harper and John E. Youngblood, consulting engineer, on their return from Cleveland said the water supply on the land adjoining Hawthornedon was found to be good and adequate.

The state has an option on the site and will exercise it at once.

Harper said negotiations had been started, looking to the installation of a railroad spur to the site in order to speed up the work.

Harper has appointed a non-partisan committee of experts to help choose a site for a new institution to accommodate the feebleminded of northwestern Ohio.

The committee will help the director select either the Grafton farm site which the state now owns or in case of the water supply there is decided to be unsatisfactory another location will be chosen.

In addition to a specific appropriation for the new hospital, Harper said his department had set aside $390,000 to start the building program as soon as the site is selected.

Morse was preparing to leave Chicago with a trunk filled with jewels he has been exhibiting for sale. He sent the trunk to the Dearborn Station receiving a baggage check from his hotel porter. When he called at the station to inspect the trunk he was shown one which he said was not his.

A trunk answering the description given by Morse had been given to another man an hour earlier, the baggage master said.

The porter at the Sherman House where Morse had been stopping, said he remembered giving Morse a trunk check and also gave a check to another man at the same time. It would have been possible, he admitted to have switched the checks.

FRANK ISENHOWER DAYTON, KILLED, AND COMPANION INJURED

Mail Train Strikes Auto At Jamestown Pike Crossing

Frank J. Isenhower, 1241 Purcell Avenue, Dayton, plasterer, was killed and R. W. Mettler, Greenville, plasterer, was seriously injured when Mettler's Ford sedan was struck by west bound Pennsylvania mail train No. 13 at the Jamestown pike crossing at 8 o'clock Friday night.

Isenhower was thrown eight or nine rods west of the crossing and was huried to Espey Hospital by Frank Schweibold, Xenia. He died at the hospital five minutes after arriving there. He sustained a fractured skull and was badly mutilated.

Mettler was carried some distance on the pike by locomotive and then was brought to the station here on the train. He was brought to the hospital by the R. M. Neeld ambulance where Dr. W. A. Galloway, railway surgeon and Dr. A. D. DeHaven, dressed his injuries.

Mettler is suffering from five broken ribs on the right side, a severe injury near the base of the spine, cuts on both legs and bruises. He passed a comfortable night, hospital attendants reported Saturday morning and it is believed he will recover.

On a false report there were three people in the automobile, volunteers searched the railroad right of way more than an hour after the accident.

The accident happened when Isenhower and Mettler were returning from Portsmouth where they had been employed. Mettler was driving and stopped east of the crossing while an east bound freight train passed.

C. W. Faber and Robert Faber, 2324 Salem Avenue, Dayton, who also waited for the freight to pass, said Mettler's auto passed them as they approached the crossing after the freight passed. Robert Faber, who was driving, turned his machine parallel with the tracks when he saw the mail train approach and both witnessed the train strike Mettler's auto.

"The men had no chance to save themselves," Robert Faber said after the accident. "They were full upon the tracks before they were aware the train was coming. The chances are that if the wrecked car had not passed so just before reaching the crossing I should have driven out upon the tracks and been unable to avoid the crash."

Isenhower's body was taken in charge by R. M. Neeld, undertaker and later removed to Dayton by F. E. Schlichter, Dayton undertaker who came here with Isenhower's father-in-law, T. H. Spencer, Dayton. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Maude Isenhower, at the Dayton address, two children, Robert and Donald and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Isenhower, Dayton.

Mettler's wife and daughter Jeanette, arrived at Espey's hospital Friday night after being notified of the accident. Both Isenhower and Mettler were employed as plasterers on the remodeling of the Jobe Brothers Store here last year and are known to Xenians.

The mail train is due here at 7:45 and was ten minutes late at the time of the accident. Witnesses say it was traveling at a high rate of speed. The train stops here only for water and carries a crew from the Columbus division.

Columbus, O., Oct. 3.—Governor Donahue today confirmed a statement issued by prohibition commissioner McDonald, denying that raiding of private homes had been restricted by order of the governor.

Litigation in the complicated damage proceedings of Elsie Washington, colored, against Miss Mattie Forbes, sister of John Forbes of Chicago, Ill., an administrator of the estate of Frances Hart, deceased cleared Friday when the second suit for $2,500 was dismissed by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy. The first suit for $10,000 was automatically nolleed by the filing of the amended petition, with the result that the amended petition for $2,800 damages will be brought to trial in Greene County.

Judge Gowdy Friday dismissed the second petition and at the same time gave Attorney Marcus Shoup, plaintiff's counsel, permission to substitute a copy of the amended petition as the original copy is said to have been either lost or mislaid. The defendant was ordered to file an answer within ten days.

The plaintiff, formerly a servant in the home of Mrs. Frances Hart, alleged in her damage proceedings she had been falsely accused of the theft of diamonds and jewelry belonging to the Hart estate valued at between $3,500 and $5,000.

Judge Gowdy recently denied a motion of Marshall and Marshall, defense counsel to transfer the original

MODISH MITZI—The Goofer Carries On The Game

The Goofer arrives with flowers and firm intentions. He begins by telling Mitzi that whenever he sees orchids he thinks of her so he couldn't resist bringing her this corsage. And how sparkling she looks this evening in that lace dress with the jabot in front.

When the door bell rings and who should take them by surprise but Harry and Adelaide. "Such a pleasant surprise, too," says Mitzi, noticing Adelaide's new coat of velvet material trimmed with civet cat. The Goofer is refraining from comment. Anything he has to say concerning either Adelaide or Harry would have to be asterisked.

And Mitzi proposed a little game of bridge. Well, at least he has Mitzi for a partner. The poor Goofer is startled to consciousness by hearing himself bid "six no trumps." Well, he won't be a dummy anyway!

No Gray Hair

No falling hair, no dandruff
By Edna Wallace Hopper

Mine is a grandmother's age, but my hair is a glory. I have never had falling hair or dandruff, and never a touch of gray. My hair is thick and luxuriant, finer than 40 years ago. Yet as a girl it was scant.

That is because I searched the world for the best hair helps men know. And I have kept up to date. Every new hair help has been brought to me. No woman in the world has spent what I have to attain luxuriant hair.

Now I have combined those helps in a product called Hair Youth. It contains many ingredients, concentrated. I apply it with an eyedropper, directly to the scalp.

There it combats the hardened oil and dandruff which stifle hair roots. It tones and stimulates the scalp. It keeps the scalp healthy and clean.

That is all you can do. The scalp is like a garden. It must be cleaned, it must be cultivated. Then hair will thrive as flowers thrive in a well-kept garden.

Here is the best men know, all combined in a single tonic. You apply it in a minute. And you know you are doing all that science can do for the hair.

My hair shows one result. So I know that every woman, every man, can obtain from Hair Youth benefits nothing else can bring.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Hair Youth is now supplied by all toilet counters at 50c and $1 with eyedropper. But I will gladly send you a sample if you will mail this coupon. Do that to learn how the greatest treatment in existence can benefit your hair.

A MAN'S COLLAR.

SPEAKING of fashions for men, none change oftener than collars. Like feminine skirts, they're up one season and down the next. Modes in collars range from soft to starched, low to high, long pointed to pointless, and from swaggy attached collar to the ultra-formal piccadilly. It is doubtful if some haberdashers have as many regular customers as they have different collar styles in their show cases.

There has long been a suspicion among collared men that every new name appearing in the realm of collars does not introduce a new shape. Men who have attempted to restock their collar boxes by name will attest to the charge that the collar manufacturers, in the interests of better business, change the names of a few styles when they run out of new shapes and fabrics.

It used to be a puzzle to the human race how the official pullman car namer thought up a new and fancy name for each new pullman or parlor car produced. A greater enigma is this prolific source of names for collars.

A collar by any other name looks just the same and the women-folks, who can match ribbon by memory, may think man's complaint against this practice of re-christening collars is perfectly absurd, awfully silly and all that, but the fact remains that a man can wear the same style of collar for twenty years and yet be unable to distinguish that style in a show case displaying twenty or more others.

Aristocratic and artistic names may have their uses for manufacturers of furniture, cabinets, railroad cars, automobile models, cosmetics and young men's suits. At least the high-sounding name is less of a nuisance thus used than when applied to such commonplace essentials as man's collars. If it is the design of the manufacturers to puzzle the retail trade, why didn't they adopt some of the 7500 Chinese characters?

THE PAY ROLL.

THE pay roll and pay day are products of our modern industrialism. They did not exist when the human race was divided into slaves and masters, nor even during the period of hand craftsmen when workmen labored alone in their homes. Today both are commonplace.

Perhaps it is because it is so universal and commonplace that people never look upon the pay roll in its true light as the life blood of the community. To the home-town merchants pay days have always been good business days, and yet those merchants received as a great discovery the idea that every day would be a good business day in the town or city whose industries were so numerous and diversified as to make every day a pay day.

Pay rolls mean business for merchants, taxes with which to run local governments, homes, schools, charity, churches, public improvements and public contentment. The more pay rolls the more of all of these community assets. And finally, and of still greater importance, pay rolls mean employment for the community's surplus labor and attractions which lure new workers and new families.

For these reasons progressive, growing communities throughout the United States offer inducements to new industries. Each new factory means another pay roll. The offers include free land, low taxes, cheap fuel and water, local capital, and even free use of buildings for limited periods.

Within certain limits, a growing population is beneficial to every community and what benefits the community as a whole serves each of its component parts.

Just Folks

AFTER-SWIMMING HUNGER

Roast beef and gravy and pot pie and lamb,
Chicken and noodles and sugar cured ham

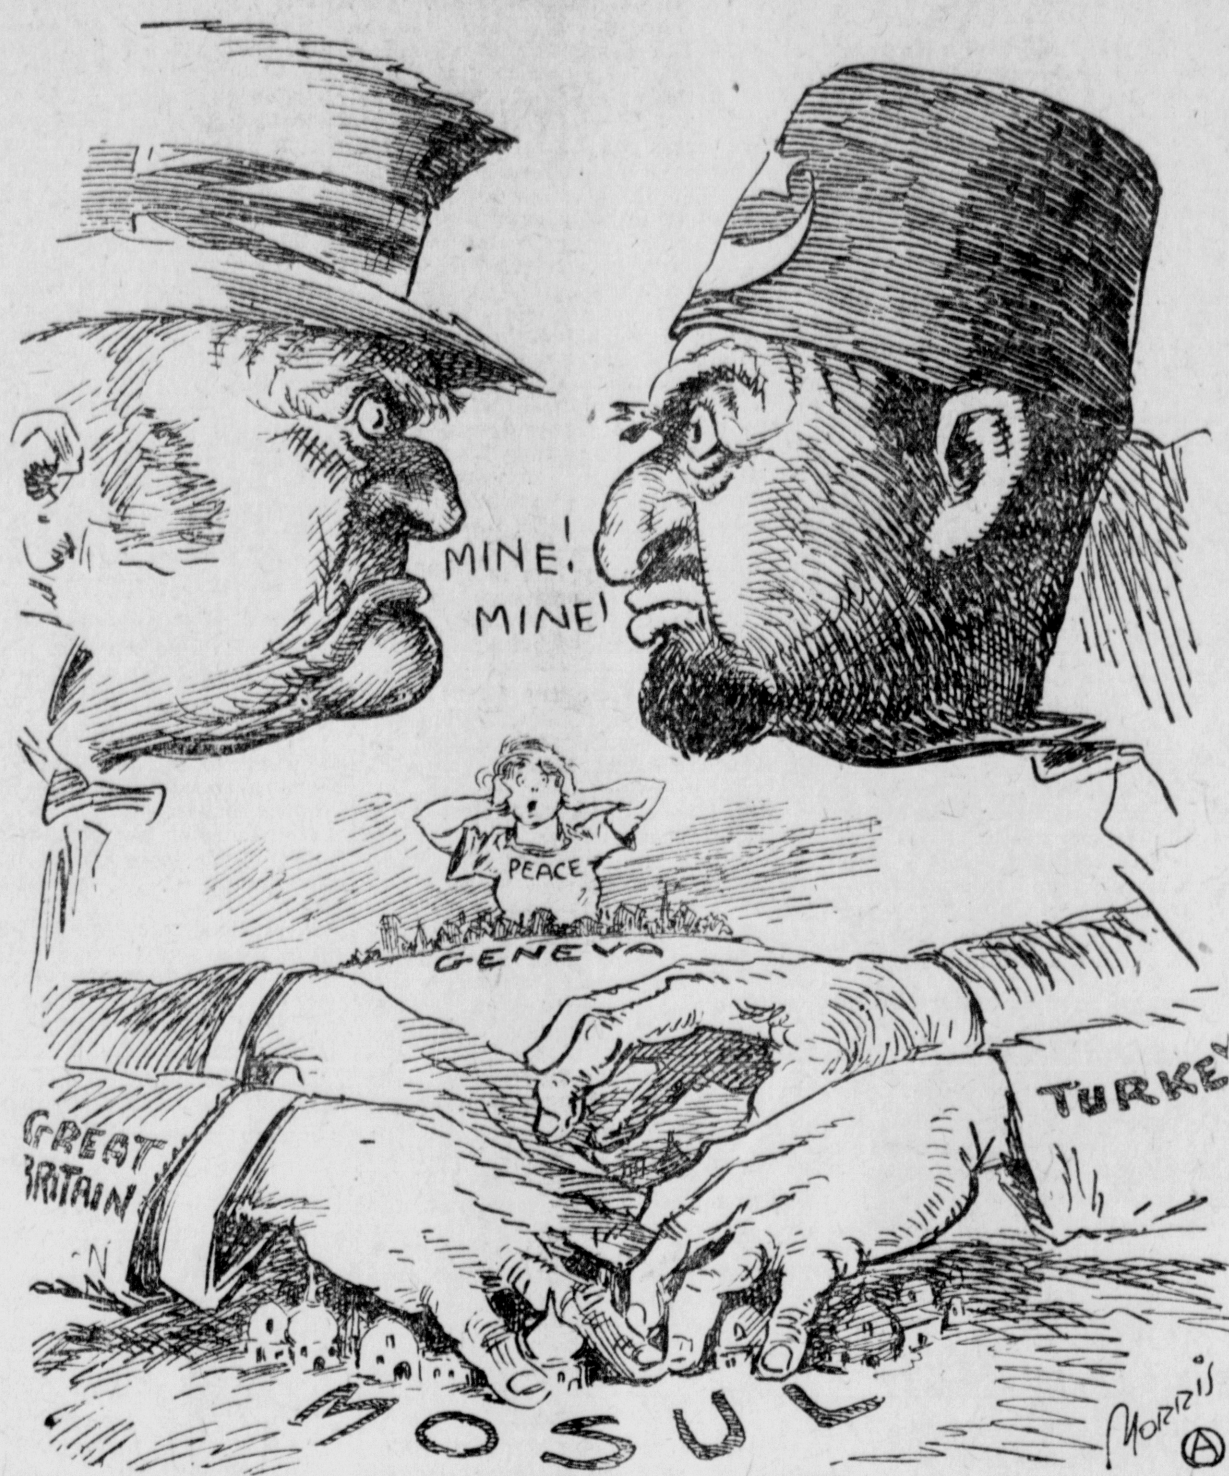

And every good thing
Of which epicures sing;
The twenty four blackbirds dished up for a king
Aren't in it a minute with that bite you take Just after you've come from a dip in the lake.

You may boast as you will of the dish you like best
And let it be salad or guinea hen's breast.

A tenderloin steak,
Or stewed rabbit or hare,
I'll answer there's nothing quite can compare
With that bite of delight which you go for with vim,
That cookie or cracker just after your swim.

Ah, hunger's a sauce which no chef can provide,
No recipe book has its secret inside,
It's in no dish of Delf
And on no pantry shelf,
It's a relish which each must provide for himself;
It's a spice without price, worth an anthem or hymn,
That everyone gets who goes in for a swim.

ANOTHER EXPLOSIVE SITUATION

1905-Twenty Years Ago-1925

After a most exciting municipal campaign, brief, sharp and decisive in its character, and strenuous as the goal was near, the Republican primary election came to an end with W. F. Brennan, nominated for Mayor of Xenia. He piled up a large vote and was an easy winner.

J. D. Steele and Dr. A. D. DeHaven were successful in gaining the nomination for the Board of Public Service. Harry D. Smith won by a huge majority for president of City Council.

The city of Jamestown is now out of debt and has $2,500 surplus in its treasury. It is the banner town of the county and a dry town.

J. H. Lackey of Jamestown, the Poland-China man, is at Hamilton this week as expert judge in the swine department.

The thrifty housewife is she who tries to make her own repairs—before calling in a professional repair man! Often, if not invariably, she succeeds and thus saves herself considerable money.

Cementing Our Own Stoves: Cracks in the iron casing of our stove or furnace may be patched as follows: Buy "iron filings" from your hardware store and water-glass (silicate of soda) from your druggist. Mix enough of the iron filings into a little water-glass to make a thick paste, then work this paste into the crack, soaking it over well. The heat of the stove will fuse the cement and form a tight joint.

Another Cement for Metals or Stone: Mix "litharge" and glycerine to a stiff paste and use immediately. Before it has a chance to harden, it will cement metal into stone with this paste and iron into wood, and vice versa. (It with-stands only moderate heat.)

Cementing Rubber Articles: There are excellent prepared rubber cements on the market, but if the housekeeper wishes to make her own, this is the method: Cut pure rubber into small bits and leave them to soak in carbon bisulphid for at least 24 hours, or till the rubber is dissolved. Stir and shake now and then during this process, keeping the container tightly stoppered. Carbon bisulphid is very volatile and inflammable—so do not keep the bottle near heat or flame. Formula for Cement: To every ounce of the rubber (weighed before dissolving) measure out two ounces of rosin and one half ounce of beeswax. Dissolve the rubber in carbon bisulphid, and the rosin in enough carbon bisulphid to cover them. Mix these fluids together, stir well, and use.

Cementing Glass or Porcelain: Dissolve casein in four times its volume of silicate of soda (water-glass) and, with a small paint brush, apply this cement to the edges of the glass or porcelain, first heating the broken article.

Another Cement for Glass or Porcelain: Mix plaster of Paris with one fourth its weight of freshly slaked lime, then form a paste of it with an egg white. Use at once.

Lime-Casein Cement: Mix equal parts of powdered casein and slaked lime together and form a paste by adding a little water. Apply at once to the glass or porcelain.

ON CHOOSING FRIENDS

I like the kind of friends that "just happen." I like the surprise and mystery that envelops friendship.

But when a friend arrives that makes us feel at once that we have inherited worth. After the first flush of happiness that is spread like the first warm rays of a morning sun, then it is that we are sure to find defects and faults of character. But we must not choose our friends as we would buy merchandise. We should choose for what we lack and we should give where our friend lacks.

The greatest gift given any of us is that of attracting friends. And when we can melt our personality into that of our friend's with a resultant tie of strength and beauty, then we have merited friendship. All our lives we are searching for friends. And those qualities which we so much desire in our friends are quite often those which we ourselves most lack. That is one of the reasons why we crave, as we do, someone to fill the gaps of our nature.

And that friend who has once been into the inner recesses of our heart never quite leaves, no matter what provocation may have divorced him.

We are peculiarly a part of all that we have met, or seen, or experienced.

It is impossible for any one of us not to take on a part of the aroma of another's influence. Ever so unconsciously at all times we are absorbing and nourishing the forces of life as they are presented to us from all sources.

To have a genius for friendship is more than to have the genius for making money or writing books or inventing.

We carry in our hearts all the precious contacts of friendship—even though they lasted but a brief span of time.

But the friend we choose to keep, to hold, to live upon as something of our very own is more to be desired than rich raiment and rare pearls. For in the sweetnesses of friendship lie the vast fields of heaven and the footsteps of God are left among the flowers of that rare friend.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will Help You Safely Through

Convey, Ohio.—"During the Change of Life I was weak and run-down and could hardly do my work. By reading your advertisements I found out about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has straightened me right out and made me feel like a new woman. By the time I had taken eight bottles I was well and could do my housework on the farm without trouble. I recommended it to my daughter-in-law after her second baby was born and it did her a wonderful lot of good. I told her to try it and if it didn't help her I would pay for it, and before she had taken one bottle she said to me, 'You won't have to pay for it! It is helping me wonderfully!' And she took three bottles of it. You can use my testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. ELSIE ACKERMAN, Convey, Ohio.

Consider carefully Mrs. Ackerman's letter. Her experience ought to help you. She tells of the trials of middle age and the wonderful results she obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

EAST END NEWS

The marriage of Mr. Van Long and Mrs. Frances Lew's was quietly and beautifully solemnized at the residence of Rev. Howe, 527 East Market Street, between the hours of eight and nine o'clock Thursday evening, October 1, 1925.

The bridal party made a beautiful picture as they marched in between long rows of blooming and bright flowers which seemed to smile as they nodded at the party through the pleasant breeze of the evening.

The party entered the cheerful living room which was particularly and most fascinatingly alive with beautiful carnations and the spirit of a wedding as the soft yellow lights gleamed over the beautifully costumed bride, who wore a tan and olive grey outfit. She was a real October bride with all the alluring shades of fall.

After the ceremonies a few moments were spent in enlivening the party after which she said good night. And the old Moon laughed, and the stars smiled as they sped swiftly away in the swarming cab on their endless honeymoon. They will make their future home in the city.

ACCIDENT VICTIM THOUGHT NEAR DEATH

George Rugman, of the Fairfield Pike, near Xenia, was reported near death at Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, Friday night after having been unconscious for nearly a week as a result of a fractured skull received in an automobile collision on the Xenia Pike near Alpha last Sunday. Physicians at the hospital virtually abandoned all hope for his recovery.

Rugman was perhaps fatally injured when the auto in which he was riding was struck by a machine occupied by six students of Antioch College, Yellow Springs.

Rugman has never regained consciousness since the accident and has been able to take but little nourishment.

Port William lays claim to one of the oldest corncutters in the state of Ohio. J. D. Brown, of that village, now in his eighty-fifth year, took his corn cutter the other day, and despite the protests of his two daughters, went forth to cut corn, his excuse being that he wanted to see if he was of any use in the world.

In a little less than eleven hours of actual working time, he had put up twenty shocks of corn. These shocks were in heavy corn and of unusual size, being twelve to fourteen hills to the shock.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Mannering, Diane Eledson and another couple have been taken to a police station after their car, in a midnight drive, had crashed into another, injuring a woman. John Mannering, District Attorney, who is Bob's father, is summoned. Soon there arrive at the station also Mrs. Mannering and Margaret Patterson, who is in love with Bob. They have come from the country club, where a dance has been given in celebration of Bob's twenty-first birthday.

John Mannering nodded gravely, but turned to stare down at the papers on the sergeant's desk with anxious eyes.

"I think, I am sure, John, that Bob ought to be home."

John hesitated, the police sergeant eyeing him curiously the while. When he spoke it was evasively.

"There are some matters here which must be attended to first, Eileen."

Too well did Eileen know her husband for his manner to escape her, nor was she slow to draw her own conclusions concerning it.

"I know. I heard that Bob was arrested," she said with a catch in her voice.

Again her husband merely nodded.

"You can pay his fine so that he can go, can't you, John?"

He swallowed hard as if there was a great lump in his throat, and when he spoke there was a strained timbre to his tones.

"I'm afraid, Eileen, this is not a matter to be settled by a fine."

"Why, it was just an automobile

"It means, it means, dear, that there can be no bail in this case."

accident, John." For the first time Eileen seemed to give heed to the presence of Diane and Theo Saturn as she turned and eyed them for a second. "Nothing more than a group of young people on their way from a party. Surely there is no reason to take such a matter seriously. None of them were hurt."

"No, none of them were hurt," agreed John gently. "But you forget the other car, dear. There was a woman in that who was hurt, quite badly hurt, I'm afraid."

"Yes, but Bob had nothing to do with that, surely," persisted Eileen.

"It appears that Bob was driving Theo's car, dear."

"Bob driving Theo's car?" she repeated and turned to her son as if expecting a denial from him.

But Bob might have been a statue for any heed he seemed to give to what was going on. He stood there gazing straight before him with that puzzled, uncertain look upon his face, yet with some of his father's determination there, too.

His very attitude seemed to make his mother willing to go to any lengths to assist him. Again she turned to her husband.

"Surely, John, you can't expect Bob to remain here much longer. Can't you at least arrange bail for him?"

"Possibly, dear," he said with a strange reluctance for a man who had agreed to bail bonds in a thousand cases as a mere formality. And now, with his wife pleading before him in behalf of his own son, he hesitated, strangely moved and again grew evasive. "But there are considerations, very many considerations, to be regarded in such matters."

"Considerations which will keep Diane and Theo here, too?" she demanded with a warmth which caused that sorely tried maid to cling even closer to Theo Saturn and to arouse even greater fear in the latter's soul.

"I think not," explained John patiently. "You see as Bob was driving he becomes the principal—that sets him apart from the other occupants of the car."

"To stay here—in this place—alone, John?" cried Eileen in horrified tones.

More pronounced than ever was that evasiveness in John's answer. A strange thing, indeed, in one ordinarily so decisive.

"That depends, dear—"

"Depends—depends on what, John?" And then as if driven to the point of desperation by his manner, she burst forth accusingly: "You are trying to keep something from me, John. I want to know what it is. I can't bear this suspense."

For an instant there was a break in his poise.

"It is hard for me to bear, too," he said, and it was almost as if he had groaned aloud.

Quick as a flash she took advantage of his slip.

"Bear what? Tell me, John—bear what?"

As if unwilling to speak he gazed at her and there was anguish in his face, but pity, too, pity for her. And as they waited there the silence of the room was broken by a telephone bell. A bull shrill and emphatic in its summons and with so ominous a clamor that it startled every one in the room and caused them to watch the police sergeant as he turned to the instrument and placed the receiver to his ear.

Eileen forgotten for the moment, John leaned towards the sergeant tense with expectancy.

So quiet was the room that the harsh grate of the instrument was plainly audible as the message came over the line.

Methodically the sergeant received it and hung the receiver in its place. Then he turned gravely to John.

"The woman has just died, sir."

John, white as a sheet, straightened himself. He seemed to be tensing his muscles to bear up against an awful shock.

Bob eyed him with that same puzzled look on his face.

But Eileen, as if intuitively sensing evil in that message, turned to her husband, her face pale with fear.

"That message—just what does it mean, John?" she gasped. "Tell me quick just what does it mean?"

He moved towards her, his own face ghastly under the emotion which shook him. He put his arm around her to support her and there was a great tenderness in his voice when he spoke.

"It means, it means, dear, that there can be no bail in this case."

He swallowed as if it was only with an effort that he could go on.

"Bob—Bob is wanted for manslaughter."

CHAPTER VI

Slowly the ornate clock on the mantel above the fireplace chimed out the hour of four.

To John Mannering the tones of that timepiece had always seemed soft and melodious, carrying a restful message, a promise of peaceful and contented hours. But now, as he stood there on the hearth with the chill of the early morning about him, their sound smote his overtaxed nerves as something harsh and discordant.

Bereft of the slightest desire for sleep, he had remained there in the living room ever since he had brought Eileen back from the police station. With all his familiarity with such heartrending scenes, the parting with Bob had been one he would never forget. Reduced finally to the depths of despair as her son was led to his cell, Eileen had collapsed. It outwardly more contained, it had been no less difficult for John to endure. Worse still, the future withheld no secrets from him. Well he knew that this, barrowing as it had been, was but the beginning of greater woes.

Directly above him hung that picture of himself in his judicial robes. That portrait of a dispenser of justice. Symbolical of justice was the picture, and not only that, for the genius of the artist had there depicted the very soul of John Mannering. Strength, character, intellect, were all apparent, but above all else it was the face of a man in whose nature cold reason reigned supreme. Heart, sympathy, each of the gentler characteristics he had, too, but subject always to the control and guidance of eternal truth.

Health Hints By the Father of Physical Culture

BERNARR MACFADDEN

A mistake that is made by nearly everyone who is desirous of increasing weight is eating too frequently—"piecing" between meals—following out the idea that the more food eaten the greater will be the tendency of the functional system to deposit additional tissue. If you want to gain weight, never piece between meals. This deprives the stomach of its rest. It takes between four to six hours to digest a heavy meal, and therefore meals should be at least five or six hours apart. Never eat unless you thoroughly enjoy your food. Avoid eating as a mere duty. It is the thorough enjoyment of food that accelerates the activities of the functional processes which supply the digestive juices. Therefore, when you thoroughly enjoy a meal, it is attacked by these juices immediately upon its entrance to the stomach and the process of digestion and assimilation go on easily and harmoniously.

Now, in order to more thoroughly carry out the idea of enjoying your food, it is suggested that the number of meals be lessened each day, for instance, instead of eating three meals a day, eat only two meals daily. I have never found a thin individual who has not been benefited by eating two meals a day instead of three. In practically every case they would be able to eat more and enjoy more and of course, digest more, when eating two meals a day than when eating three. Following out the theory of never eating unless you enjoy food, you will find that if you wait for your breakfast until ten or eleven o'clock you will have a keen appetite and every bit of food will taste delicious, and under such circumstances, it does you far more good than when you eat as a duty or just because it is meal time.

If too tired do not eat a heavy meal, as when the body is fatigued the digestive organs lack the energy required to properly handle a full meal. Try to arrange your tasks so that taxing work of any kind, physical or mental, will not immediately follow a meal. After a meal, the blood is needed at the stomach, and it cannot be spared for the muscles or brain sufficiently to enable one to do good work. Do not eat for at least two hours before retiring.

"NOT POSSIBLE TO CLASSIFY"

BY MACK SAUER

AN HOUR AT THE POLICE COURT

Imagine a woman of sixty being fined for being drunk. That's what happened in the police court recently. Sad but true. Her story was that she was not drunk, that she had no liquor but had taken only some medicine given to her by a physician. Evidence, however, proved that she was soused and she paid her fine of three dollars.

The court room was a mass of onlookers who had come to revel in the accusations, the denials, the pleas of guilt and innocence. Window sills and chairs were filled before Judge Smith took his seat. Standing room was at a premium.

Most of the tales got to be old stuff with the officers, but the one who drops in at Xenia's bar of justice for the first time often finds himself deeply moved by the pleas.

From the jail was brought a young husband from Kentucky whose wife has been living in Xenia. He was charged with drunkenness. His wife testified that he came to her house here while under the influence of liquor and brandished a knife. Her story was that they have been separated for some time.

A colored gentleman claimed he was not guilty of being drunk. His wife, who said she is the mother of four small tots whom she helps to support declared he was drunk. And that he came home and took the doors off the hinges. After a fine and a few well-put words of advice from the Judge the arrested man went away smiling.

A few dollars taken in from those who failed to heed "Stop" signs.

It's an experience one should not miss - this attending Police Court. But try to keep your name off the blotter.

THE BUD

She used to wear a long skirt
The proper thing, no doubt
But now she wears a short one,
She's slowly coming out.

HUNTERS OF COON AND FOX ORGANIZE

Organization of what will be known as the Greene County Coon and Fox Hunters' Association was effected at a meeting of a number of sportsmen at the home of Samuel Bone, Paintersville, Thursday night.

Warney Webb, of the Jamestown Pike, was elected president of the organization for the coming year at the election of officers. Other officers installed were Samuel Bone, vice-president and Gilbert M. Strayer, Xenia, secretary-treasurer.

The association now boasts of but thirty members but a meeting will be held at the Famous Auto Supply Company, West Main Street, this city, October 15 at which plans will be laid for a membership drive. All coon and fox hunters in the county are invited to attend the meeting.

CENTRAL PERFORMS WELL IN GAME WITH COLLEGE THURSDAY

The heavy Cedarville College eleven handed the light and inexperienced Central High School team its first defeat of the season at Cedarville in a practice game Thursday afternoon by a score of 20 to 7.

The athletes of Coach Vic Kolb put up a great battle and although outweighed at least thirty pounds to the man, exhibited unexpected strength both on offense and defense in managing to hold their college opponents to three touchdowns while scoring one themselves.

Cedarville's forward wall averaged easily 180 pounds and all the opponents' scoring was the result of old-time straight football and line smashing tactics.

Backed and tossed about by the opposing team, Central's line bore up well under the brunt of the attack and displayed the fighting spirit by twice holding Cedarville for downs in the shadow of their goal line in the last half.

Central was unable to gain much ground by straight football but was successful in completing five of seven passes for five first downs when it resorted to the aerial attack.

Central scored its lone touchdown in the second period when Fred Scurry, veteran linesman, picked up a Cedarville fumble and raced eighty yards for a touchdown. The goal attempt was also good.

Cedarville scored a touchdown in each of the first three periods but was held scoreless in the last quarter. The play of Marshall and Scurry at the ends, Rakeoff at guard, Clemens at center and Parrett at tackle were the bright spots of the local's game.

"Scotchie" Finley, Central's diminutive quarter, also played a whale of a game and snagged several passes for gains ranging from twenty to thirty yards.

Central's play on the whole showed a marked improvement over the victory over Bath Township last week and Coach Kolb is elated over prospects of a victory over Piqua October 10. The Piqua game will be played at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

EAGLES GYM SEES FIRST WRESTLING MATCH OF SEASON

A large crowd was present to witness the free wrestling bout staged at the gymnasium of Xenia Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles Thursday night, held for the purpose of creating enthusiasm in wrestling this winter.

The gym was thrown open for public inspection for the first time this year and the free mat bout was staged as a feature of rapidly maturing plans for a big membership drive this fall.

Principals in the wrestling match were "Speed" Crawford, this city, and Brown, an ex-service man, who claimed the mat championship on the battleship on which he served during the World War.

Brown substituted for Gene Wead, this city, who failed to appear, but was out-generaled by Crawford and lost the decision. Crawford won the bout by taking the first and third falls.

The local boy won the first fall in eight minutes with a hammer lock but lost the second to Brown in twelve minutes when he fell the victim of a head lock.

The third fall was quickly decided in seven minutes when both men tripped and fell to the floor. Brown was underneath and was momentarily stunned, so that his opponent was able to pin his shoulders to the mat for the required number of seconds.

HOME CADETS SHOW WELL BUT LOSE TO CEDARVILLE HIGH

Athletes of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, playing their first football game in the history of the institution, made a creditable showing in the game with Cedarville High School at Cedarville Friday afternoon but went down to defeat before their more experienced opponents by a score of 6 to 0.

The Home eleven experienced a touch of nervousness in the first quarter and allowed Cedarville to march down the field and count its only touchdown after exactly nine minutes of play. The ball was taken over on a series of end runs and line bucks. Townsley, Cedarville quarter, lugged the oval across from the two-yard line plunge.

Shaking off their first "stage fright" the Home boys improved with every play, and although the necessary punch to score was lacking, Cedarville was played to a standstill with the result there was no further scoring. Credit for the Home team's showing goes to Professor H. E. Seall, musical director at the institution who has labored untiringly with his material for several weeks that the team's maiden effort on the gridiron should be successful.

The Home eleven had but one real opportunity to score. In the first half, Sharp snatched a long pass from Dietz and traveled seventy yards to the Cedarville ten yard line before being tackled. The play, however, was not allowed as a Home boy was called offside.

Outweighed several pounds to the man, the Home gridders displayed a fine defense and the offense was all that could be expected for the inaugural game.

The Home eleven will probably play its second game of the season with Bath Township High School. Friday October 16, it is announced. It has not been decided whether the contest will be played at Osborn or in Xenia.

EATON TO FURNISH GRID OPPOSITION

Members of the Tiltons' "33" football eleven are being pointed for the coming clash with the Eaton Triangles Sunday afternoon at Cincinnati Avenue Park. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

The line has been considerably strengthened with the return to the squad of "Hank" Barnett, who has been a member of various Xenia independent elevens for several years. Last week the locals defeated the North Dayton Merchants 13 to 6.
